The image shows a blue-toned photograph of a Japanese newspaper masthead. The top half features large, bold characters: '2月' (February) on the left, '17日' (the 17th) in the center, and '金曜' (Friday) on the right. Below this, there are two rows of smaller characters: '新文局' (Shin Bunko) on the left and 'の戦' (no Sen) on the right.

This image shows a blue-tinted photograph of a historical document. The text is written in a stylized, bold font, likely woodblock-printed. On the left, there are four large characters: '書簡' (Shūkan, meaning letter). To the right of these is a large, circular, blue ink seal. Below this section, there are more characters: '三輪屋' (Mitakeya) followed by '銀鏡' (Ginkō), which translates to 'silver mirror'. The entire image has a distinct blue color cast, characteristic of old photographic prints.
